its effects on human health have been little studied.
we cannot tell you how long you have been walking for but the idea is to achieve as much distance as possible